Day:

Dr. Khinèche Soumèya

Scientific Committee

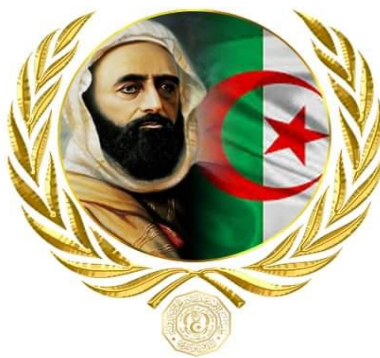

Chair:

Dr. Markria Souhaila

Preamble:

The Algerian history has never been poor, but rather full of heroism, as well as battles and revolutionary wars led by the Greats, as; El Cheikh Bouamama, Lala Fatima Nsoumer, El Cheikh El Moukrani, El Chiekh El Bachir El Ibrahimi, the scholar AbdelHamid Ibn Badis, and..... . However, the most renowned, glorious, and famous one, used to be the Algerian El Amir Abdelkader son of Mahyeddine an unparalleled figure in the Algerian history at that time. Moreover, this latter was from a noble descent. He led armies, countless battles and wars. He was able to conquer hearts not only wars. He was a man who knew the value of his people and their ethics. El Amir performed the trust and was as a fortress, as well as a victory to his homeland. A man who was a father to his country and people; furthermore, he was a true lawyer for his values and principles illuminating the path of his nation. Abdelkader was a beacon highlighting the path to a radical independence for both his people and nation. He immortalized his name and adventures in the Arab-Islamic; as well as the western history. Indeed, without forgetting his permanent presence in the curricula of national education. Pupils and students have full rights as well as the world's literature and poetry during the nineteenth century.

2. Literary and poetic works done by the Algerians and others giving an homage and appreciation for his masterpieces and his war heroism with the French invasion.

3. The Prince has influenced many countries and those latter have been influenced by him during his period of control over the colonial situation, which made them proud of his warrior character. They even called their towns after him and erected statues of him in public squares.

4. The conquest of the Orient, by El Amir who left his fingerprint on, let's the world witnessing his humanity before his religion.

5. Factors that made tournaments, battles, and wars led by our commanding hero well deservedly, cross seas and oceans to settle in a continent that knows neither Islam nor Muslims.

6. El Amir succeeded to engrave his name in gold in the newspapers of the Algerian history, in particular, and western one, in general; thanks to his biography full of heroic adventures, amazingly rooted in the encyclopedias of world records.

7. The large political, religious, and national motives that led the Algerian El Amir Abdelkader tend to fight in order to free his homeland.

8. His artistic way to deal with Christians to ensure their security in Syria, thanks to his amazing and distinguished manners and noble lineage.

9. A brief representation of the Prince's lineage, his biography, as well as his treatment with his family, relatives, and others.

10. The most important international exhibitions and

- Shed light on the Great Algerian history through the commander of her army and the minister of her humanity with morals like no other. El Amir Abdelkader is the symbol, the emblem of the New Algeria, as well as the icon that made him cross the seas and the oceans to conquer a world, which knows neither Islam nor Muslims who have been the less prevalent ones. And by the way, he succeeded to engrave his name within a Christian label.

- Dissemination of the literary and the military legacy left by the Prince through the largest Arabs and West newspapers and books.

- Defining the echo of his Republic and his universality within the countries of the world, we thought they were denial of our glorious history.

- Remind students of the history of the icon of Algeria and the extent to which the West has been affected by his personality via his speech analysis, and the inclusion of his biography, as well as the literary skills from a Linguistic aspect to enrich both pupils and students to know more about their immeasurable Algerian history.

Problematic:

➤ So, I wonder, what is the immortal footprint in this world left by the Algerian Chief of noble lineage El Amir Abdelkader Ibn Mahyeddine in the world's history, literarily, as well as Linguistic pages from the nineteenth century till nowadays?

National Conference

Axes:

1. The most important battles, struggles, and popular resistances that the Algerian El Amir fought for, and their impact on the Algerian's, to know and study the biography of the Prince through the literary, poetic, and linguistic aspects. The Prince had a great eloquence in his speech until he won the admiration of some linguists. In the field of Language Sciences Abdelwahab Belghars published an article entitled: "Cultural Competence in a Textbook of Philosophy in High School." This latter, studied the curricula in terms of programs, as well as cultural, and linguistic overlap. Historically, he was humane and able to distinguish the truth from falsehood in his dealings with his people, nation, and even the French authorities, as well as the Christian community in the Orient. He was a just person in his decisions, and preserved the values of his ancestors, along with his noble lineage. His morals and prestige; as well as his extraordinary ability to settle the situation, made him of the greatest leaders of Great Algeria. Furthermore, a large number of literary men and women from the Orient and the West competed to publish his championships, his ideal personality, and his unlimited humanity. This actually made him a historical personality before the whole world, representing a symbol and motto of peace worldwide. It was even reported in the London Times newspaper that: "El Amir raised the Prince's concern for Paris defying all the power of France during the reign of King Louis Philippe. And the history of French invasion of Algeria is essentially a record of the struggle waged by the prince against the first military nation in Europe."
