Theme of the Forum:

Cinema is an important creative experiment in understanding the nature of the controversial relationship between human beings and society, in strengthening local cultures and discovering the cultures of others. We learn to know different civilizations in the world and spread our culture through cinema as well. No cinematic experience, no matter how mature it is, takes on its social and historical significance unless it is passed on to others and transforms into a parallel movement, intellectual and social in general, which motivates them to do something.

This explains the deep artistic nature of cinema, as well as its absolutely and inevitably realistic nature, and arguably also explains its objective place. Cinema is based on deep insights into the issues of existence, knowledge and values. Cinema can change people's ideas and beliefs for the better, and for that reason, the image is a mirror reflecting one's self and the other, and reveals that to us through a visual cultural format using its technical, visual and linguistic language.

Based on the foregoing, this forum will discuss the major issues that the cinema has been exposed to, such as the dialogue of civilizations and all matters related to the relationship between man and the other.

Objectives of the Forum :

- Learn about the importance of cinema in people's lives.
- The extent to which cinema addresses topics related to dialogues among civilizations.
- Cinema and culture of coexistence and tolerance.
- An awareness of the relationship of an image to reality and history.
- The extent to which themes of civilizations' clash influence film reception.
- The effectiveness of cinema in discovering the culture of others and self-knowledge.

Forum Tracks Axes :

- Cinema, religious, cultural and ethnic diversity.
